11. Report of the Programme:

Dr. Indrakshi Ghosh , Associate Professor and Head of the Department of Economics, Behala College (Autonomous), Kolkata, delivered a lecture on ‘Values of Women in Our Planning Discourse’. India has undergone several five year plans with the aim of attaining economic development. There have been provisions for upliftment of our women in our plans. Dr. Ghosh discussed how women were looked at and what value they were assigned in different plans, and how that changed as we progressed through time. The students, all girls, were totally engrossed, and the lecture was followed by a lively interactive session.

12. Programme Outcome:

The idea of an extension lecture is to expose the students to thoughts outside their standard curricula, to bridge academic theory with real world application, and to arouse their inquisitiveness about things other than what they have learnt. The content of the lecture, the questions that the students raised and the opinions that they put forward were all testaments to the fact that these objectives were achieved.
